- 1. Complex and difficult to define
- 2. NOT a specific party or interest group, these are stable political entities
- 3. NOT a mass fad or trend, these are unorganized, fleeting and without goals
- Social movements exist somewhere in between stable political organizations and mass trends
- 5. Involved in conflict with clear opponents
- 6. Linked by dense, often informal networks
- 7. Share a distinct collective identity
- 8. Typically aimed at policy change, but also often more broadly aimed at cultural change.

Social Movements can also be Hate Groups

- Social movements may cross a line to become a hate group. A sole actor may also damage a movement by committing violence in the name of that movement, which may label the entire movement as a hate group.
- 2. FBI has definitions of hate groups and hate crimes for the USA:
 - Hate Crime: [A] criminal offense against a person or property motivated in whole or in part by an offender's bias against a race, religion, disability, sexual orientation, ethnicity, gender, or gender identity.

 Hate Groups: Primary purpose is to promote animosity, hostility, and malice against persons belonging to a different target group. Investigated by FBI only when a threat of force is made following Attorney General protocols.
- Hate groups are mapped here by Southern Poverty Law Center: https://www.splcenter.org/issues/hate-and-extremism
- Accusations of being a hate group could also be considered repression of an authentic movement that is trying to speak truth to power.

CSWE APM 2023. Dr. Cynthia George

Social Movements can evolve into a Terrorist Organization

- Social movements that are hate groups may cross a line to become a terrorist organization. Members of the group must repeatedly commit violent, criminal acts to cross this threshold.
- 2. International movement to define what "terrorism" means.
- 3. FBI has working definitions of terrorism for the USA:
 - International terrorism: Violent, criminal acts committed by individuals and/or groups who are inspired by, or associated with, designated foreign terrorist organizations or nations (state-sponsored).
 - Domestic terrorism: Violent, criminal acts committed by individuals and/or groups to further ideological goals stemming from domestic influences, such as those of a political, religious, social, racial, or environmental nature.
- Accusations of being a terrorist group could also be considered repression of an authentic non-violent movement. Some left leaning groups do not hurt people, only property.

|--|------------------|---------|----------|--------|------------|----------|

- 1. Social movements may get co-opted by a conspiracy theory. False information spread in energized networks can spur extremist members to act.
- 2. Conspiracy theories seek to explain events or circumstances (that may or may not have actually occurred) by attributing events to a secret group of actors, typically alleging wrongdoing by a targeted group of either very powerful or else very marginalized people.
- 3. FBI forbidden from investigating free speech until there is a clear connection to violence, threats of force, or clear calls for the use of force.

CSWE APM 2023. Dr. Cynthia George

(FBI, 2019)

Criteria for evaluating a movement's theory base in SOWK

- Criteria 1: The theory should be explicitly critical to the extent that it includes a reflexive element concerning its historical, cultural, and political and economic significance. Generally, a theory that is explicitly critical will seek to be liberating in that it serves to expose unquestioned truths, reveal hidden mechanisms, and/or proposes alternative conceptualizations.
- Criteria 2: The theory should recognize humans as active agents. Agents are capable of choice, reflecting on their own actions, balancing temptations and distractions to achieve objectives, restraining desires, and adopting new principles
- Criteria 3: The theory should account for the life experiences of the Agent. This means the theory must be able to take account of the meanings people infuse into their experience of the world.
- Criteria 4: The theory should promote social justice. This means people should be free from the arbitrary control of others, leading to the expansion of human rights and the legitimation of human variability.

Search tips for studying social movements

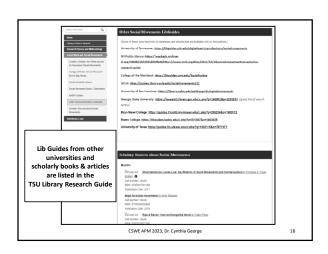

- Review (Ness, 2015) and conduct internet searches to choose & analyze
- Always play around with your search terms until you figure out the best set of words to use to pull up sources about your movement
- If you are searching for old information, you may need to use old words...
- Search "Imovement namel timeline"
- Search "[movement name] history"
- Search "[movement name] documentary"
- On YouTube, search "[movement name]" Search "[movement name] leaders"
- Search "[movement name] agenda"
- Search "[movement name] public policy" Search "[movement name] social media'
- Search "[movement name] hashtags" to get a list of hashtags to then search on relevant social media platforms, go to each platform then search "[movement name]" and/or search specific related #'s
- Search the Libraries for peer reviewed articles or other scholarly sources about the movement. Major movements will likely have some published, it is evidence of some level of bureaucratization and impact on society.

A poem on prison abolition by James Ker

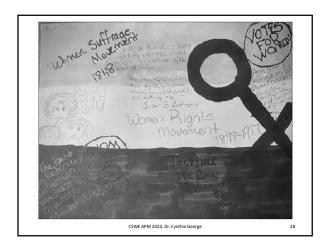

We Offer Pain/Give Us Freedom

The dirt that mixes in with heat Is good and just the left over seat On high at hand the breeze is cool The rush of water the leak in pools And rust from pain on end like lightning The scar of heat installed igniting To they who ask the frigid wonder The tear in heart of rain and thunder An answer still upon awakening Is like the light from hope and shaking And in the end the bastion broke A withered call of peace bespoke

Grading given Divisive Concepts Legislation...

- 1. You are NOT grading a student's belief in a specific concept or support for a given movement, you are grading the ability to:
 - a) Choose a topic to conduct research & analysis on
 - b) Analyze a social movement using a scientific framework
 - c) View an issue through the NASW Code of Ethics
 - d) Engage in self-reflection to check personal bias to discern actions appropriate for professional social work practice
- 2. I use a holistic competence rubric...
